

THE HALL-MILLS CASE

THE MYSTERIOUS JERSEY TRAGEDYWATCH FOR TOMORROW'S INSTALLMENT

Daughters of influential families vied with their less fortunate sisters in attracting the attention of the young clergyman, who became the chief guest at church picnics and other social gatherings, for the most part arranged by the feminine members of the congregation.

It was apparent not long after his arrival that Dr. Hall appeared to take more than passing interest in Mattie Long, a gentle, refined little woman who taught school for a living and whose admiration for the preacher could not be masked.

The report that Mattie and the minister were engaged created no great furore among those who had watched the progress of the courtship, which reached its height during a church picnic, when the pair blushing received congratulations from their friends.

It was during the height of this merrymaking that fate asserted itself and beckoned Dr. Hall from the group of friends with whom he had been lunching and led him into the party of which Frances Stevens, fourteen years his senior, was a member.

SENTRY KILLS PRISONER

Simpson Plans
Curb on Jury

Snyder, incensed at the prosecutor's accusations against the late Azariah Beekman, prosecutor of Somerset county at the time of the slaying, hinted that he would continue the grand jury hearings with the purpose of clearing those whom Simpson accused and even casting aspersions on the senator's conduct of the murder investigation.

Through Henry L. Dickman, ex-state trooper, Simpson had implicated Beekman in the bribing of the investigator.

Today, however, the foreman appeared to have weakened and indicated that he would do what Simpson desired, most likely adjourning the grand jury, according to the prosecutor's wishes. There still was a chance, however, that the jury would fight Simpson.

Jane Joliffe of Bernardsville, only woman member of the grand jury, said today:—

"I will ask Senator Simpson if the newspaper accounts are correct in quoting him as saying that the September grand jury is fixed. I will make him explain. I won't have myself slurred as an individual or a member of the grand jury."

"I was surprised that there was ill feeling between Mr. Snyder and Senator Simpson. When the jury adjourned on Friday I believed there was nothing but the friendliest feeling."

Through the crowds which assembled around the courthouse this morning were several men and women said to be leaders of the Ku Klux Klan. These leaders of the hooded order are reported to be violently in sympathy with Mrs. Hall and her kinsmen and are said to be supporting the grand jury rebellion against the special prosecutor.

One of the men, quiet of mien but powerful physically, was in command of the Klan forces. He gave his orders in a guarded manner but it soon leaked out that he was from Atlanta, Ga., and was empowered to act by the national head of his organization.

The condition of Mrs. Jane Gibson, the "pig woman," the state's star witness, is still serious. Every effort is being made by the prosecution to take her mind off her ailment. To this end a radio has been installed in the ramshackle house on the pig farm.

State troopers on guard have been told to prevent the "pig woman" listening to any serious matter. They have instructed her how to tune in only on dance music and other light entertainment.

The mark concern of the prosecutor over Mrs. Gibson is due to the fact that her malady often carries with it loss of memory.
